FROM THE PRESIDENT

Dear Alumni, Families and Friends,

I hope the new year is off to a good start for you. As I reflect on the school year thus far, I recognize how blessed we are at Calvert Hall. We have had many things to celebrate this year. The Band continues to build its dynasty winning both the USBand Maryland State and USBand Mid-Atlantic Regional titles. Our soccer team finished the season undefeated as the MIAA Champions and recognized as Co-National Champions. Cross Country won the MIAA Championship and finished as the number one team in the state. The Turkey Bowl trophy came home after a brief, one year stint at Loyola.

This issue of The Cardinal focuses on our annual immersion trip to Browning, Montana and the Blackfeet Indian Reservation. The Brothers lead a middle school there. A group of 12 students spent a week working with these students and immersing themselves into their culture. Later in the semester, we will send immersion groups to Homestead, FL, and Camden, NJ. Service is a key component of a Lasallian education, and we provide opportunities for our young men to experience this both locally and nationally. The students who go on these trips will tell you that they are transformational. I encourage you to read the reflection Evan wrote for this issue on page 16.

For the first time since COVID, we will celebrate our Gala 2023, ONWARD, in-person on the campus of Towson University in SECU Arena on Saturday, March 25. We will have the opportunity to induct new members into the Hall of Fame and celebrate all things Calvert Hall. Tickets for this wonderful evening are now on sale at calverthall.com/gala.

In October, we announced the public phase of our capital campaign, Calvert Hall 175. This is an ambitious campaign with a $28 million goal focusing primarily on our endowment. To date, we have raised close to $23.5 million. I am thankful for and excited by the generous response of our donors and friends. We have created over 47 new scholarships that will help ensure Calvert Hall maintains a diverse student body across all socioeconomic backgrounds. This is who we have been, who we are, and who we will continue to be – a community that provides the opportunity for young men to reach their true potential. As successful as this campaign has been to date, we are not done yet and still need your support. Please consider being part of this campaign. Every gift makes a difference.

On behalf of our Board of Trustees, our amazingly dedicated faculty and staff, and our students, thank you for your continued support and passion for The Hall! You are all a blessing to us.

Live Jesus in Our Hearts..... Forever!

Sincerely,

Brother John Kane, FSC, Ed.D.

PLAYING THE ODDS

THE KING OF SPORTSBOOK

While many teachers at The Hall

had a profound impact on my journey as a young man, two teachers that particularly left their mark are Dr. Andrew Moore and Mr. John Thaler. Dr. Moore's ability to connect with students was unmatched. I went into his Humanities class and knew very little about things such as Renaissance painters or Greek philosophers. I vividly remember his lectures and his ability to make what I considered dry subjects to be compelling. Mr. Thaler was a tremendous Mathematics teacher. His knowledge and enthusiasm for the subject was contagious. His extra credit questions on each test were legendary! Mr. Thaler and I bonded over our interest for numbers. This interest steered me to study Finance, Business Analytics and Accounting in college which ultimately led to my current role.

I am working in a relatively new field in the world of online sports betting for BetMGM, one of the major players in the space. I am a Sportsbook Operations Coordinator, meaning I work alongside all the departments in the business - trading, promotions and tech - to ensure that players have an enjoyable experience while also safeguarding the bottom line. Sports betting is an extremely competitive industry with hundreds of millions of dollars being spent on advertising to attract new customers to this progressive and exciting business. This industry became possible in 2018 when the Supreme Court overturned the Professional and Amateur Sports Protection Act (PASPA). Because it is so competitive, one needs to be able to think on their feet and make the appropriate business decisions in a timely manner. There are many parallels between this business and the stock market. I must adjust spread numbers due to injury news or removing games entirely due to uncertainty in the market. People are constantly taking positions and my responsibility is to use that information to determine what it means and if their information is better than that of which I have.

Looking back, Calvert Hall changed the outlook of my life for the better. As a freshman, I was given more personal responsibility than ever before, yet I was also given the support needed to make good decisions. I participated in activities and athletics on top of my academic pursuits. By keeping this type of schedule, I learned time management skills and how critical they are for success in life. I learned how to advocate for myself. This skill proved to be extremely useful as I landed my first job in online sports betting by walking into the headquarters of a competitor and dropping off my resume.

I am incredibly fortunate to have had teachers and peers that showed a commitment to each other and to me. The teachers at The Hall were always available when I needed assistance. My fellow students were just as dedicated to creating an atmosphere where everyone was invested in each other's successes. I am proud to be a Calvert Hall alumnus.

She was also able to visit two projects run by young men raised in the Lasallian tradition – one project focused on sanitation needs for more than 500 families while the other focused on providing clean water to over 13,000 families and a hospital.

SAMANTHA SNIDER – ENGLISH FACULTY

Samantha travelled to Red Cloud, Nebraska, to immerse herself in the homestead of author, Willa Cather. She visited Cather's childhood home, explored the city of Red Cloud, toured the Willa Cather Memorial Prairie and had a private tour of the archives in the Cather Center.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Saint John Baptist de La Salle, the patron saint of Christian Teachers, was a pioneer in founding training colleges for teachers, reform schools, technical schools, and secondary schools for modern language, arts, and sciences. At a time when very few lived in luxury, only a select few could send their children to school. De La Salle was determined to put his own talents and advanced education at the service of the children. To this day, Lasallian schools across the globe focus on providing an affordable education to the communities they serve.

Not that many years ago, Calvert Hall was able to offer its students $1.0M in scholarship funds. Today, the total annual commitment to tuition assistance and merit scholarships is $6.0M, with much of these funds coming from annual operational resources. In the LaSallian tradition, Calvert Hall strives to offer an educational experience to students without regard to financial circumstances. The Hall prides itself on diversity – economic, social, racial, and religious.

One focus of Hall 175 – The Campaign for Calvert Hall is dedicated to securing $14.5M in named endowed scholarships. With these additional funds, Calvert Hall will be better positioned to meet the financial needs of many more students. To date, 93% ($13.5M) has been raised towards the goal.

Calvert Hall has proudly added 47 new scholarships since the start of the campaign with more in the works. In total, Calvert Hall currently offers 139 scholarships and grants.

The Road to Browning, Montana

DE LA SALLE BLACKFEET SCHOOL

Calvert Hall Immersion Programs offer students a life-changing experience.

For weeks leading up to the trip, a team of students along with two faculty/staff members meet on a regular basis to discuss and better understand the culture of the community they will visit. Calvert Hall first travelled to Browning, Montana, in 2006 and has since travelled to the Reservation 15 times. The De La Salle Blackfeet School located on the Blackfeet Indian Reservation, is a Lasallian San Miguel school currently serving 68 students, grades 4-8. San Miguel schools serve predominantly at-risk populations, are not tuition driven (per capita income on the Reservation is less than $12,000), offer small class sizes (16 student maximum), and extend support to students beyond graduation. Evan Levasseur '23 was a member of the 2023 Montana Immersion experience along with 11 other students, Ms. Pikus, and Mr. Parisi. Evan shares his experience of preparing for and immersing in the Blackfeet Indian Reservation culture.

When the 12 of us decided to embark upon the Montana Immersion Trip, none of us could have predicted the remarkable impact that this trip would leave on each of us. In our meetings prior to departing, we were taught what to expect: a community riddled with immense poverty compounded with alcohol and drug issues. On top of learning about the beautiful Native American culture, we learned that 7/10 adults on the Reservation are unemployed, 3% have a college education, and only 65% finish high school. Hearing these shocking statistics provided us insight into the community we were about to enter into. Only after arriving and fully immersing ourselves into the culture were the emotionless statistics reinforced with visuals from our own experiences. We witnessed the dichotomy of a gorgeous background lined with mountains reaching up to the stars directly contrasting with trash blowing aimlessly across the street in the foreground. Taking advantage of this beautiful landscape, we hiked nightly, watching the vibrant sunset reflecting off the flowing river. Oppositely, our direct work with the students through tutoring in class elucidated the struggles and traumas that they face. Living these new experiences in conjunction with being immersed into a new culture enlightened us on the poverty present in Browning. Throughout the course of the week, we discussed the rampant poverty, and it was through these discussions that places of poverty in our life were made clear. As a tight-knit group, we openly discussed what we lack in our own lives and how the poverty seen this week has shifted our perspective. For this reason, the Montana Immersion Trip has been the most impactful experience in my life. Learning about the poverty in my life and how to fix it as well as experiencing a new culture has left an indelible mark, forever impacting me.

Evan Levasseur is a senior at Calvert Hall. He is the Chief of Staff on the Student Council, a member of the Peer Ministry Leadership team, a McMullen Scholar, and a part of the Varsity Volleyball and Squash teams. He is choosing between Penn State, University of Pittsburgh, University of Maryland, Duquesne University, Drexel University, Johns Hopkins, and University of Pennsylvania for college next year.

MODEL UNITED NATIONS

By Club Moderator: Josh Shank

Model United Nations, also known as Model UN, is an educational simulation and academic competition where students take the role of a delegate from a particular country to use diplomacy to solve current real-world issues as if they were actual members of the United Nations. Members of this club travel to other schools' Model United Nations Conferences to compete against other delegates from the Baltimore area to win awards such as Outstanding and Best Delegate. Students earn these awards by influencing the direction of their committees through public speaking, argumentation, writing, and diplomacy skills.

Calvert Hall's Model United Nations Club hosted its fourth Model United Nations Conference titled HALLMUNC IV on February 25, 2023. Over 120 students from surrounding schools took on the role of delegates in one of five committees including General Assembly – Water Scarcity, General Assembly – Spread of Misinformation, Fictional Crisis – USS Ford Summit, Historical Crisis – Peloponnesian War, and one Ad-Hoc committee.

More information on each of the committees offered can be found at www.hallmunc.weebly.com.

DIALED IN WITH JOHN GABURICK, '84

WWE | SENIOR VICE PRESIDENT INTERNATIONAL SPECIAL EVENTS

What was your path to working with the WWE?

After graduating Towson University, I went to work for Francis Smyth '78 at a local business. I got a call one day from an old friend who asked if I was interested in relocating to Connecticut, to work for WWE and produce a new television reality show on MTV called, Tough Enough. I spent the next four years working and learning the business with some of the most talented producers in television.

Share with us how you became involved with setting up wrestling events overseas.

At WWE you wear many hats. I've had numerous responsibilities including running the Commercial/Promo department and coordinating our successful "Tribute to the Troops" events in Iraq and Afghanistan. My current responsibilities with WWE involve managing our Middle East/North Africa business. We stage large premium events in the region that draw an upwards of 70,000 people and distribute this programming to every country in the region via television.

What are some of your passions?

I have an amazing wife and two great kids living in Nashville, TN. There is nothing better than spending time engaged in their activities, especially sports. I still attend as many Ravens and Orioles games as possible.

What skills or knowledge did you learn at Calvert Hall that you find to be the most useful in your multiple endeavors?

Discipline and organization for sure. Individual classes that encouraged vocabulary expansion and fundamentals in grammar that laid the foundation of proper storytelling surely helped in my career.

Where was your favorite place to hang out during free periods while at The Hall?

The Cafe - Front table for quick access. "Fries, Marge!"

Adrian Amos, Jr. '11 wants to know - What do you wish you would have done that you didn't do in high school?

Calvert Hall was a tremendous experience. No regrets at all, but I could have studied Foreign Languages more seriously.

Pose a question of your own for our next Dialed In alumnus -

Is there a Christian Brother or teacher that gave you a life lesson you use today?
